

I used to get coffee at my local coffee shop on the way to and from work. There was also a location right near my office. I was a regular with my work friends.

Now I spend most of my time working from my couch, but I miss my coffee. I tried one of those pod machines, but it wasn't very good. I don't want to have to go out and shop for something else though.

I know it seems like I should have a lot of time right now, but I somehow have less. If I could just have someone do the work for me based on what I like and deliver it to my door, I would be all in.
